 Sixteen hundred pairs of optics looked own upon the defeat of the Cockade tossers at the West-End Ball park yesterday afternoon, and many a soul went back to Petersburg ake some explanatory remarks setting how and why little Timothy Tugment West's Bloody Shirts demontrated to Keefer, the cadaverous capain of the Agriculturists, that they knew thing or two about the game.

o finish. Richmond taking the lead in the fatal fifth and keeping it straight rough. Those same old rooters from and they didn't forget to let the public know they were there. Their criticisms were as pronounced as ever. They said what they thought, and thought what ney pleased about the work of Umpire who has recently been engaged by satisfaction so far as the spectators were erned, and made a number of atro-sectsions in calling strikes, balls, and eversa. His ability in this direction inferior to that of Clarke, if yester-s work was a sample.

RED HOT BIVALRY.

There wasn't a shadow of a doubt that a most emphatic rivalry existed between the two clubs, as well as between the spectators from the neighboring cities. Wagers on all sides were made, kicking on the part of some of the piayers was as common as the obstreperous tendencies of those who nelped to make things lively, while nearly every member of the Independent Order of Rooters from the Cockade City wore their badges in full view and exercised their lingual members to their heart's content.

The two teams were well matched, Petersburg's battery being slightly superior, and their hitters being balanced up only by the admirable fielding of the home team. Forman proved himself a capable man in the box. His curves were a kind of bewildering puzzle to the Legislators. Even Kain, the clever little hitter, fell a victim to his delivery twice, while six others fared similarly. Forman was backed up by a strong support in the person of Keefer, who did fine work behind the liver-pad. here wasn't a shadow of a doubt that

HOW IT HAPPENED.

Richmond went to the bat and failed to score. Petersburg followed suit. In the second the Legislators went out in the one, two, three order, while the Agricultyralists succeeded in getting in two runs somewhat after this manner: Farrell lined her out for a clever double. Honeycut's hit advanced him a bag. He scored on Phillips' error, while Honeycut was tossed out at second by Setley. Myer fanned out. Forman reached first on bails. Kain's error permitted him to go to second, and a safe hit by keefer sent him across the rubber. Sanford's single sent Keefer to third, and Kain retired the side by throwing Brodie out to Tate.

In the third Satley accord for the home. the third Setley scored for the home

In the third Setley scored for the home team through an error on the part of Myer, assisted by Forman's wild pitch and Pop Tate's single, while the visitors went out in the one, two, three order. Nothing of interest was done in the fourth. Napier and Foster each got in a hit, but didn't complete the circuit.

The fun began in the filth, when Richmond secured three runs, and presented the visitors with a goose egg. This is the history of the inning:
Kain opened the programme with a beautiful two bagger. He scored on McGann's single, assisted by an error on the part of Kelly, who let the sphere get by him. Phillips, who had waited for four balls took abvantage of the same points to decorate third, McGann having reached second. A wild pitch by Forman gave both men a run. Tate flew out to Kelly, West to Honeycut, and Foster retired the side by being thrown out third to first.

In the sixth Kelly set the Petersburg contingent crazy by a splendid triple. He scored when Setiey threw Farrell out to Tate. Stafford struck out, and Honeycut flew out to Morgan. It was a long fly ball, for which the left fielder had to scramble. He ran some twenty yards and captured the sphere on a jump amid delirious cheers from the grand stand. Then the Bloody Shirts got in some effective work. Morgan waited for four balls. He scored on Napier's double. Setley flew out to Keefer, and an error by Stafford put Kain on second, while Phillips got four balls. A beautiful two bagger by McGann permitted both men to score, as well as Napier, who had reached third on Stafford's error. Tate removed his colloscal frame down to second by nothing less than petit larceny, but Foster flew out to Myer, and left the over-shaped first baseman to die where he was.

In the seventh and eighth Richmond went out one, two, three Petersburg got in two uns in the eighth. Sanford was thrown out by Setley to Tate. Brodie stirred up the Cocade City cranks by a clean two bagger. Kelly flew out to West. And then Stafford mauled the leather for a home run, sending Brodie in ani creating a how! from the visiting spectators that caused the bleacheries to quiver and quake. Farrell made a hit, but Kain threw him out to West. Losing up the run-making for the visitors.

In the ninth the Bloody Shirts added a more score to their record by a suble and single on the part of West d Morgan respectively, assisted by ear's error. And the Richmond spectars were jubilant.

LYNCHBURG, VA., June 1.-Lynchburg beat Staunton to-day 12 to 5. The only feature of the game, aside from the brilliant fielding of Cleves and Malarkey, was the heavy hitting on both sides. Staunton had several good opportunities to ball up close to the winning score, but the home team headed them off every time. In the sixth Staunton had the bases full, where McKenna sent in three lightning balls, striking out Bally and retiring the nine.

All the morning attempts were made to find a laundry where the "inexpressibles" could be washed in due time for the dress parade, and it was not until after it o clock when an establishment was found whiling to undertake the job and return the ciothes by 4 o'clock.

A DELAY OF AN HOUR. A DELAY OF AN HOUR.

It had been the intention of Coi. John A. Harman, the commandant of the pattallon, to hold the dress parade at the Capitol Square at a o'clock, but owing to the delay in the returning of the white trousers it was nearly 6 o'clock before the cadets turned the corner of Sixth and Grace street. They had marched down Franklin street from the camp, and their arrival was cagerly looked for by hundring was cagerly looked for by hundring the camp.

Grace street. They had marched down Franklin street from the eamp, and their arrival was eagerly looked for by hundreds of spectators in Capitol Square. After turning into Grace street the column halted to his bayonets. It was indeed a beautiful sight from the square to see the boys go through the manual of arms and then take up their march again. All movements were as regular as possible, and spoke well for the efficiency of their drill master.

At the entrance of the Square Sergeant Cosby was in waiting with a large detail of men from the Second police station, ready to clear the way for the battallon. The blue-coats found this not an easy job, but Colonel Harman appeared to be master of the situation, for by some adroit movements he left everybody in the dark, even the preservers of the peace, as to his actual line of march and the spot where the dress parade was to take place.

THE DRESS PARADZ.

The battailon marched in five companies, with columns of fours, across the grass plots on the north side of the square and finally drew up in line for dress parade in the space between the grounds of the Executive Mansion and the Jackson monument. The five companies were commanded by Captain A. H. Apperson, of Company E. L.W. Gerrell, of Company A; C. J. Richardson, of Company B; S. Vance Lovenstein, of Company C, and Lieutenant A. T. Eskridge, of Company C.

The ceremonies of the dress parade, which were closely watched by the spectators, were faultiess, and the cadets may feel justly proud of their military achievments. Governor O'Ferrail, Mrs. O'Ferrail, and several others witnessed the military spectacle from the entrance of the executive mansion, and were well pleased with the exhibition. The Governor stated subsequently that he fet proud of the cadets, whose movements were as smooth and precise as clockwork. Among the interested spectators was Colonel B. W. Richardson, president of the Blues Association, and quite a number of officers of the Virginia Volunteers. The understanding had been that the battailon would, at the close of the dress parade, march through the grounds of the Executive Mansion to be reviewed by the Governor, but for some reason Colonel Harman changed the programme and the battailon returned at once to the camp. There was some slight disappointment at the Executive Mansion, but it was not sufficient to mar the good impression which had been created by the splendid dril of the cadets.

A FALSE RUMOR.

While the crowd of spectators were awaiting the arrival of the battalion at the Capitol Square, it was stated among them that on the builetin board of an evening paper the drowning of two cadets had been announced, and everybody was anxious to ascertain whether this announcement referred to Blacksburg College. Fortunately, however, this fear proved to be unfounded, for the statement in question referred to an altogether different matter. COLONEL HARMAN'S EXPLANATION.

BALTIMORE, June 1.—President Han-lon, of the Baltimore base-ball club, has waived all and any claims he may have had to the services of Catcher Merritt, re-cently released by the Boston club. He will go to Pittsburg.

COLONEL RAEMAN'S EXPLANATION.

I saw Colonel Harman late last evening in his tent at Camp McBryde, as the boy's have named their temporary quarters after Dr. J. M. McBryde, in reference to the failure of the battation of marching through the grounds of the Mansion at the close of the dress parade.

He received the first intimation, he said, that this was expected, after he returned to the camp. He would be only too giad to have taken his command through the grounds, but he considered them private property, and being a stranger here in the city, it never occurred to him that the battallon was expected to march through there. When he called on the Governor at II o'clock the evening before to request him to review the battallon, he understood that he was to form that body in the Capitol Square, and he was in ignorance as to the understanding between the Governor and Dr. McBryde, according to which the boys were to pass the Mansion.

The Senate continued the sugar schedule debate to-day, and, in fact, it is possible that several days will be thus occupied, but with each succeeding session it becomes more apparent that the Senate amendment will be carried and with a few votes to spare.

that he was not in favor of the sugar bounty as granted by the Fifty-first bounty as granted by the Fifty-first Congrezs, but was in favor of a duty on sugar. Senator Manderson spoke this morning in the same strain, and it is not at all unlikely that upon the final vote several other Republicans will vote for the schedule as returned by the Democrats.

There is, it is claimed, a sense of justice in this sugar duty that appeals very strongly to the Democratic senators. The Reed Congress gave to the sugar raisers a bounty which, by law, was to

Upon this proposition a large number of individuals, invited by this bounty, invested their means in various channels for sugar raising, until, as Senator Blanchard states, about $100,000,000 was invested in Louisiana alone in plantation machinery and other necessary equipments for this industry.

CUT OFF WITHOUT WARNING.

The Wilson bill, without premonition or warning, cuts off this bounty, and puts sugar on the free list, thus leaving these men who invested upon invitation of the Government and with every reasonable assurance of a continuance for fourteen years of the present condition, absolutely without remedy or redress, and without the possibility of saving what they had invested. Between man and man this kind of transaction would at least not be viewed in the light of perfectly just, fair and candid treatment, and this argument alone seems to have been sufficient to satisfy some of the senators in their vote for a small duty upon sugar.

Congressman James W. Marshall has been very unwell for several days. His physicians insist that he needs rest, but he seems to think that his duty to his constituents should be considered even before his health.

To-day Congressman Oates, who has just received the nomination on the Democratic ticket for Governor of Alabama, made a personal request of Mr. Marshall that he go to Alabama and make several speeches in his behalf.

Congressman Oates anticipates a hard fight, and Mr. Marshall would like to give the one-armed ex-Confederate all the aid in his power, but was compelled to decline, as the duties to his constituents required his presence here.

North Carolina was given another excellent appointment to-day. Mr. Pendleton King, who, under the former administration, was Charge d'Affairs at Constantinople, and was prominently mentioned as Minister to Turkey upon the resignation of the Hon. S. S. Cox, to-day entered upon his duties as chief of the Bureau of Indexes and Archives of the State Department. This bureau is one of the ranking bureaus of the department, and second only in importance to the Cousular Bureau, which is also presided over by a North Carolinian, Mr. Faison. The appointee, Mr. King, is a gentleman of rare scholarly attainments, and will be a valuable acquisition to the able corps of State Department officials.

Most of the clerical labor on the river and harbor bill has been completed by the clerks to the Senate Committee on Commerce, and the bill is ready now for the consideration of the committee. It is hardly probable that the matter will be taken up until the tariff bill has been disposed of. ME. TUCKER FOR REPEAL.

Congressman Tucker, of Virginia, this afternoon spoke in favor of the repeal of the tax on State banks. His speech was intently listened to by the House, and was punctuated by earnest applause. He succinctly defined the difference between money and currency, and stated that what we needed was more currency with which to effect exchanges; that the question was not whether the volume of currency per capita in the United States was ample, but whether some other people had our share of it. The per capita of the members of this House might be one hundred thousand dollars, but it would be because many own millions and most of us own none.

The establishment of State banks would not mean the destruction of the national currency, but rather its enlargement, for as State bank notes would ultimately be redeemable in gold and silver, the base of supplies would have to be enlarged as the drafts upon it were increased. Its effect would be the extension of credits and utilization of now dead property. The passage of this bill would be the emancipation to enslaved property. It would be a galvanic battery applied to the corpse of useless values, which would revirify the dead and infuse new life into the living. Mr. Tucker urged upon the Democratic majority its duty to repeal this tax, and made a strong plea for this measure of relief for the agricultural communities.

Mr. Tucker always commands the attention of the House, and was cheered by his colleagues as he closed his eloquent speech.

PAID TO PROTECT CRIMINALS. Damaging Testimony in Reference to New York Police Captains.

NEW YORK, June 1.-The Lexow police investigating committee resumed work to-day. One of the matters scheduled for to-day. One of the matters scheduled for to-day's session was the report that each policeman of the city had been assessed $25 to secure the passage of the bill increasing their saiaries.

Policeman John E. Leonard, of the Twenty-eighth precinct was the first witness. He said that when, on last election day, he ordered a loafer named Kelly away from the poling booth, which was situated at Sixty-sixth street and Third avenue, Kelly, who had a political puil, had him transferred from the Sixteenth precinct to his present precinct.

had him transferred from the Sixteenth precinct to his present precinct. Charles Prim, who came next, proved to be an important witness, although he was loath to testify. He said he formerly kept a disreputable house on Bayard street for six years.

"How often were you raided?"

"Only once; about a year aso."

Counsel Nicoll objected, but was overruled, and then came out some startling testimony.

testimony.
"When I first kept the house I paid 25 a month for protection to the wardman, George Conners, now at headquarters. Captain Cassidy was in charge of ters. Captain Cassidy was in charge of the precinct."

"Was the price raised?"

"Yes, to $50 under Captain Cross, when he took charge.

"Did you not pay a lump sum?"

"Yes, after I was raided I paid $500.

The witness said he paid $50 a month to Captain McLaughlin, who succeeded Captain Cross.

"I also paid the new captain an initiation fee of $500," said the witness coody.

"When Captain Devery came in, what then?"

"I paid $500 initiation fee."
"What was this wardsman's name?"
"His name was Glennan. He is now with Captain Devery in his present precinct."

Witness told how Captain Devery, when he came to the precinct, sent for him. He went to the station house in Eldridge street, asw Glennan, who said Captain Devery meant business and he had better pay up.

"I haven't got it,' I told Glennan," said the witness.

"What then?" asked Chairman Lexow.

"Tou can get it,' he said, and I raised the $500 and paid it."

"What did he say about giving the money to the captain."

"The wardman said that the money was for the captain."

"When did you close your house?"

"Last October. I got word to close my doors as Parkhurst's agents were active. Since then I have kept closed."

"What did the police say?"

"Keep quiet until after the Senate police investigating committee get through and then everything will be open full blast."

"How much in all did you pay?" the witness was asked, and a pencil was furnished him to figure up the total.

"Well," said the witness, putting down the pencil, "I find I paid $4,300."

"What! $4,300?" gasped the chairman.

"Yes, $4,300." answered the witness.

This was the climax, and the gavel, in the hands of Senator Lexow, pounding for order, was drowned in the exclamations that broke from the lips of the several hundred spectators.

When quiet had been, in a measure, restored, Counsel Goff asked him to furnish the committee with the tames of other keepers of disorderly houses who had paid blackmail. The witness gave the names of several.

"Were you not afraid that you might place your life in danger by appearing before the committee?" he was asked.

"Yes, I feared that the police might make it so hot I should have to leave the city."

Counsel Goff informed him that if any one sought to intimidate him hereafter that he would prosecute the person or persons free of charge.

Then the witness told how members of Tammany clubs tried to levy assessments on him, but he would not pay, as he was not a member.

Delancy Nicoll cross-examined the witness and elicited the fact that he had served all through the civil war and was a G. A. R. man.

"Did you pay Captain Cassidy a cent?" asked Nicoll.

"Not directly. I paid his ward man." Speaking of Inspector McLaughlin, who was then a captain, he said he paid his wa

Bluefield is unusually active at this time. The continued unsettled condition which exists in the more northern States among the coal miners has all contributed to enlarge shipments from this section. The output for the past six weeks has been very heavy, and continues to be.

The Stout case, which has excited so much public interest, in which his counsel has asked a new trial, was not heard by Judge McClaugherty this term of the court, but will be argued during vacation. This is the case in which Stout, a special policeman of this city, shot and killed Jasper H. Vest, an ex-policeman, while serving a civil process. Vest denied his authority, and Stout attempted to arrest him, and while Vest was standing in the street he shot and killed him. There was bad feeling between the men. The trial justices released Stout—one being on his bond and the other being part owner of the account about which the difficulty arose. He was indicted by the grand jury of Mercer county next day and found guilty of murder in the first degree, with recommendation of imprisonment for life.

POISONS IN AIR AND WATER.

The Very Fact That They are Unseen and Unsuspected Makes Them the More Dan.

"Nearly everybody is in great danger just at this time."

The speaker was one of the leading physicians in New York.

"With the malaris in the air and the danger in the water," he continued, "people need to exercise the greatest caution and care. The trouble with these things is that they come unawares and are often unsuspected. The germs of malaria are drawn in by every breath, the seeds of disease are spread by each swallow of water."

are drawn in by every breath, the seeds of disease are spread by each swallow of water."

The Doctor looked thoughtful for a moment, and then continued, "There is but one way to prevent these dangers, and that is to be watchful. Instead of drinking iced water and other things all the while, and in place of permitting hot and foul air to spread maiaris in the system, people should be watchful and check these things on the start."

There is but one way that this can be done, and that is by the use of some pure stimulant constantly or when the slightest feeling of sickness appears. The only preparation which has ever been known to certainly counteract these troubles in time, is that great, that popular whiskey. Duffey'n Pure Mait. It has been used by the public of America for over twenty years, and has proven its surpassing merits only by what it has accomplished.

If men and women would counteract the deadly germs in the water at this season of the year by mixing Duffy's Pure Mait with it, they need have little fear of low fevers or malaris. It should be borne in mind, however, that it is only Duffy's Pure Mait Whiskey that will accomplish this, and that however much druggists or grocers may say to the contrary, it alone can be depended upon.
